

Emotions Motivate Actions

Emotions motivate us to take action. Different emotions lead us towards different kinds of action. Sometimes the actions that our emotions guide us towards can help us to survive, for example:

see rotten food > feel disgust > don't eat the food > don't get sick > survive!

Our emotions are not always a perfect guide to action though. We can choose to listen to what our emotions are telling us but we don't always have to react in the ways they 'want' us to.

Joy or Happiness can motivate us to join in, take part, share.

Fear can motivate us to get away.

Sadness can motivate us to withdraw, brood, ruminate, seek comfort.

Anger can motivate us to attack, lash out, stand up for ourselves.

Guilt can motivate us to repair what we have done.
Shame can motivate us to hide away, to keep things secret, to punish ourselves.

Disgust can motivate us to withdraw, keep a distance, get clean.

Compassion, empathy, or sympathy can motivate us to offer comfort, be with.

Embarrassment or humiliation can motivate us to hide.

Confusion can motivate us to check things out (or paralyze us with indecision).

Powerlessness can motivate us to give up.

Indifference can motivate us to ignore.

Affection can motivate us to give love, get close to.

Emotions Motivate Actions

Emotions motivate us to take action. Different emotions lead us towards different kinds of action.

Think about what kind of action each of the following emotions might prompt you to take:

Joy or Happiness can motivate us to _____ Fear can motivate us to _____

Sadness can motivate us to _____

Anger can motivate us to _____

Guilt can motivate us to _____

Shame can motivate us to _____

Disgust can motivate us to _____

Compassion, empathy, or sympathy can motivate us to _____

Embarrassment or humiliation can motivate us to _____

Confusion can motivate us to _____

Powerlessness can motivate us to _____

Indifference can motivate us to _____

Affection can motivate us to _____